

Air Quality Recap

November 2011

Energy Saver Website

Check out the Department of Energy's Home Energy Saver website. Calculate how much energy your home uses; learn ways to make your home more energy efficient; see how much you can save by making upgrades; discover how small changes you make can help improve air quality. Learn all this and more at <http://www.homeenergysaver.lbl.gov/consumer/>.

Number of Observed Days with AQI Above 100

PARTICLES	JUL	AUG	SEP	OCT	NOV	TOTAL
2010-11	0	0	0	0	0	0
2009-10	0	1	0	0	0	1
2008-09	0	5	0	0	0	5
AVERAGE	0	2	0	0	0

Unhealthy for Sensitive Groups (USG) AQI levels were not observed in Columbus during November 2011, as was the case in November 2010 and November 2009. In fact, AQI levels were in the Good category in Columbus on all days in November 2011.

No air quality alerts were issued in November 2011, November 2010, or November 2009.

The average temperature for the month was 48.7 °F, which was 4.3 °F above normal. In November 2010, the average monthly temperature was 43.7 °F. Columbus received 4.77 inches of precipitation, which was 1.57 inches above normal.

Maximum Daily AQI for the Month by Category

